Gratitude Challenge
Award Winner:

Isabel Vasquez

"I think I express my gratitude in many different ways. It really all just depends on the person. Everyone's different, everyone likes different things, everyone feels differently. So if someone prefers gifts, I'll get them a gift. If they prefer access service, I'll do something for them. Or if they prefer words, I've expressed my gratitude through words..."

“Even when when I get older, I want to do big things. I don't know what those big things are yet completely, but I just want to do big things and make an impact in the world, pretty much. And knowing that I woke up today and I'm healthy and I'm feeling good and I'm alive and I'm in some situation that some people don't have the same opportunity that I have right now. I just want to make the best out of this opportunity that I have and that some others can't get, whether that's here or around the world.”

"Two attributes I already understand in the QUADs I've selected are QUAD 3 and QUAD 1. The connections I see between these two QUADS is understanding your energy and who you are can help you persevere throughout a journey because you know yourself well and are aware of what you'll need to make the most of the road ahead of you."

"A few people that give me perspective on different things are usually my friends and sometimes my mom. Usually my friends give me the most perspective because they're my same age and, like, I relate to them. So, like, if I ask for feedback or criticism on my art, they'll give it to me. And also, like, random people on social media. That's how I get perspective."

"I feel like my Future Self would win – it just depends on what the battle is. If it were something like extra sleep, then my Present Self might win; but if it was homework, then for sure my Future Self would win. With homework my Future Self would win because I know that I need to get my homework done."

I'm looking forward to becoming a firefighter as a result — and I know that even though this will be a great challenge for me and I'll be sure to face many obstacles, I'll still grow as a result."

"The three words people would use to describe me are laid back, responsible and respectful. I'm a laid back person according to my friends, because I'm just generally chill around them or anyone else. The second one is responsible, as pointed out by my mom, because I manage stuff well. I don't do any nonsense that will upset my mom. And the final thing is respectful. I respect my mom, I respect my friends, and I respect anyone, no matter what."

"Although I wasn't obligated to give a birthday gift, the last gift I gave to someone was my father on his birthday. I knew I wasn't obligated to get anything, but I knew he deserved it after those years he raised me and my older brother. He actually deserves way more. More than a gift. For me, the gift I gave him was just a simple coffee mug because I knew how much he enjoys drinking coffee every single morning. Of course, he was grateful. And because it meant so much to him, I wish I could give more. And I plan to give back more as I grow older."

"When I think about the IMPACTER process, some attributes I've noticed I'm well developed in already are purpose and grit. I discovered my passion for art really early and improved my skills by high school to ready myself for art college. However, I have dealt with many days where I compare my own art to someone else's art because I think their art is better than mine. Comparing art sometimes makes me lose the motivation to keep improving on my own... but because of all the support I receive from my peers and family around me, I stay gritty and keep going."

"My example are basketball players, they had to practice and put in a lot of work in order to get where they are at the moment. Athletes, in general, need practice. The same with E-sports players too. You can't just wake up one day and be super-good at gaming, you have to practice and put in work to be good at it. Maybe not 10,000 hours, but at least a few thousand."

You can dive into experiences with childlike curiosity, or ask questions that let yourself think things through and help you to come up with questions you want answers to."

"Something that drives me to get out of bed in the morning is the simple fact that I don't want to be stuck in the same place for the rest of my life. I want to be able to grow, and I want to be able to learn new things, have experiences, and just stuck in one spot my whole life, I feel like that you're not like to be able to move through life."
